SATURDAY MORNING, NOVEMBER 13, 1858.

HOW TO GET SICK. R. H. M. writes: "I slept in a room one night which had been washed out during the day, and was not quite dry. I awoke next morning with a sore throat, which has continued ever since." The result is, he has had to abandon his theological studies and place himself under treatment, after baving lost two years' time

H. M. writes: "I went to sleep in a warm day on the top of an ice-box, and have never been well since," He shortly after died of consumption.

T. H. took a very severe cold, conversation was laborious, but he had an appointment to preach and felt as if he must fulfil it. He made the attempt, but the utterance was attended with a pricking pain in the throat, and then a doll burting came on in the throat, with subsequent "hemming" and fruitless "clearing." He was permanently disabled.

A modest man walked until quite fatigued, and perspiring freely, entered an emnitus, and eat next a lady who opened a window to get some fresh air for herself. He soon became chilled and was ill for three weeks.

H. P. got up at night and boisted the window to look at a burning house; the cold air darted in on the unprotected body, just from a warm bed. A twelve months' illness re-

A strong, hearty man came in on a hot summer's day immediately took off his coat and bat and sat in the open window, looking out upon a beautiful garden, over which the ocean breezes came to fan him. Before he was aware of it he was chilled, was attacked with inflammation of the lungs, and died within a week.

A delicate young lady, an invalid, a patient of ours, in an excursion with several others, was "overtaken" by nightfail, and by a voung gentleman. They were in a boat, and the boat was in the mud, the tide having gone out on a visit to the sea, and "there they were." a mile from shore, and several miles from home; that mile was extraordinarily long and short. Oaly thick of it. A whole mile over a Jersey flat! covered with water, mud and bulrushes, carrying in the arms a young lady of eighteen, with one of the sweetest voices, faces and torms to be eeen in or out of Jereey. Bespattered with mud, dripping with fog and dew and slush, steaming with perspiration, and wearied with hunger, hurst and fatigue, delighted and excited by the nevelty of the thing, she "didn't have anything the matter with her at Why? She had taken lessons of us .--Instead of pulling off her bounet and shawi and sitting in a cool place, or instead of undressing at once and thus letting the air check the perspiration, she went into a warm room, closed the doors and windows at the same moment, laid aside the garments one by one, at intervals, and when cooled off, in the course of balf an hour, retired to sound sleep and a healthful awakening.

Another man rode three miles with a little child sleeping in his lap, which, pressing against his stemach, caused unusual warmth there. It was a chill, raw November evening. In walking a bundred yards to the house, the child moving slowly and wind blowing, the whole abdomen was chilled in a moment. The next morning he awaka with the ominous pains of peritoneal inflammation, which is often fatal in three or four

A man had some accounts to draw off in midwinter. It was a cold night. He was greatly interested, time went, and the fire, too. He felt a little chilly, but thought be would soon be done; that it was not worth while to rebuild the fire. It was near one o'clock before he left for home, and he reached it most thoroughly chilled. Next moraing he had pneumonia and never got well.

Remaining at rest for hours in a cold room in raw, cold, damp weather, is enough to kill three men out of four, by bringing on congestion of the lungs, lung fever, or inflammation of the lungs. Clergymen and lawyers often sacrifice their lives by speaking in warm rooms, the body debilitated by the effort, the skin in a state of perspiration; the lungs all beated up; and thus bungry, tired and depressed in body and mind, go out into the cold air to ride or walk home--and to die in the very bloom of health and manhood. And yet, to know these little things there are but. dreds who hesitate to give a dollar a year, when on the knowledge of them human life is daily bung, and for want of it daily lost --Hall's Jour. of Health.

This company commenced issuing Policies against loss or damage by fire, on the 16th of March, 1854, since which time over five thousand seven hundred persons have insured and become members of the Company, and over thirty thousand dollars have been paid for losses -Having trebled our business during the past year, we feel grateful for the liberal patronage bestowed upon the Company thus far, and for its flattering prospects of future usefulness.
